Welcome to WTTW11

WTTW 11 links advertisers to tuned in consumers in search of award winning information and entertainment programming. Our consumers see quality and excellence in WTTW sponsors, because they see those characteristics in our programs. With renowned programs for both children and adults, advertisers increase their corporate or business image in an environment free from commercial clutter. WTTW 11 brings loyal consumers who trust the sponsors we broadcast. From building a brand to generating and maintaining a reputation, WTTW 11 is the only place to be seen.

WTTW 11, is America’s most-watched public television station, and a major exporter of Chicago’s cultural wealth. This powerful institution brings quality television to nearly 2 million households on a regular weekly basis and reaches 75% of Chicago’s entire DMA in one month.

- WTTW and its programs have been awarded some of the most prestigious accolades the industry offers, including seven George Foster Peabody Awards, considered by many to recognize the highest achievement in television.

- The station has received more than 200 Emmy Awards from the Chicago Television Academy, Iris Awards from the National Association of Television Programming Executives for Best Public Affairs programs, DuPont/Columbia University Awards, and recognition from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting as well as the Chicago and New York International Film Festivals.

- Entering its fifth decade, WTTW continues as a leader in technical innovation.

- Having co-developed stereo sound for television, WTTW was the first station in the United States to broadcast in stereo.

- WTTW is also a pioneer in high definition television (HDTV) and in 1988 became the first television station in the country to produce a program in HDTV.

WTTW’s mission:

...to provide distinctive television programming for diverse audiences in Chicago and the nation. Through production, broadcast, cable and other means, we offer programming that informs and inspires, educates and entertains. Our programs aim to improve understanding of public affairs and current events; to provide access to excellence in the performing arts; to create awareness of different times, places, and cultures; to explore the natural world; to excite children about learning; and to foster lifelong skills for better living.

LINK WITH THE VALUED PBS BRAND

The PBS brand is a mark of dependable quality in a confusing and constantly changing media marketplace. This stature allows PBS sponsors to leverage and align themselves with the recognition and respect Americans feel towards PBS.

Value of PBS affiliation:
- A third of respondents were “more likely to trust advertising on this network (PBS) for my family” (44% above the average network)
- More than half (55.1%) of respondents agreed that PBS consistently fulfills their expectations (31% above the average)

Power of the PBS brand:
- When asked to rate the importance from a list of community institutions, PBS ranked third. PBS beat out local museums, performing art centers, and NPR public radio. Public parks were named first, followed closely by public libraries in second.
- Twenty-eight corporations/brands (93% of those measured) received a quality lift for sponsoring a PBS program

Source: Harris Interactive Inc. 2003.

Studies show that association with the PBS brand can both enhance and increase your bottom line:
- 70% of PBS viewers would choose to buy a product from a company that supports PBS, all other things being equal
- 67% of PBS viewers have noticed announcements of companies and foundations on PBS that provide funding
- 59% of PBS viewers agree that sponsors are usually industry leaders
- 72% agree that PBS sets the standard for television

"... respect for the consumer .... can be demonstrated in choosing the quality of a message over the repetition of it. Let’s face it: The amount of advertising out there has gotten ridiculous. And the answer to clutter isn’t more clutter. Let’s quit making the media buys that replay a commercial every five and a half minutes."

Local Buying Source:

WTTW Chicago
Companies may sponsor a particular program or purchase spot adjacencies on WTTW. With a sponsorship, companies have a direct association with a program and are identified at the opening and closing with a 15-, 30- or 60-second message preceded by an audio/video billboard. Spot adjacencies are available throughout the WTTW schedule on a flighted basis and appear in program intervals.

Multimarket Buying Source:

National Public Broadcasting (NPB)
Companies that prefer to focus on selected markets, may benefit from multi-market sales and sponsorship. NPB is the exclusive national rep firm for major public television stations throughout the U.S. NPB provides one-stop service and offers an array of flexible packages to meet your needs.

British Comedies

Laughter with a British accent reigns on WTTW11!

Keeping Up Appearances
Saturday, 7:00-7:30 p.m.

When it comes to snobbery, Hyacinth Bucket (pronounced "bouquet") is in a class of her own. She's so obsessed with etiquette and breeding that she makes her husband's life a perfect misery. Patricia Routledge stars as Hyacinth, who goes to incredible lengths in her quest for perfection.

As Time Goes By
Saturday, 7:30-8:00 p.m.

In the early 50's, a young army officer and a student nurse fell in love and enjoyed a brief magical affair before he was posted to Korea. But his letter went astray and she never saw him again ... until now.

Judi Dench stars as Jean, a hardworking widow who runs a secretarial agency with her twice-divorced daughter, Judith. Geoffrey Palmer is Lionel, a divorced ex-army officer and coffee planter who has returned to London to write his autobiography. When Lionel becomes displeased with the temporary secretary from the agency, Judith tries to placate him and makes such a good impression that he invites her out to dinner. Inevitably, Lionel and Jean meet, with the strangest feeling they have met before. Just a reunion ... or a romance rekindled?

Coupling
Sundays, 10:00-10:30 p.m.

It's been described as Friends with edge. When two people get together they bring all sorts of other people with them – their exes, their best friends. A little community forms around the couple. The result is a sitcom about chatting in bars and kitchens and getting close to just the sort of people you think you ought to hate. While NBC is carrying the American version of Coupling, WTTW11 is the only broadcast channel showing the original British version!
